

THE RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

OF CHILDREN

EMMA

Yr 5 - St Mary's Catholic School

Hi! I'M BISHOP

ANTHONY RANDAZZO

Did you know that you were made in the image and likeness of God, with unique beauty and dignity? God who created you, loves you very much.

It's my job to help you protect the beauty and dignity that belongs to every person.

Children in our Diocese of Broken Bay have rights that need protecting. It is important to know that you have human rights and spiritual rights, which are presented here in this book.

The artwork of students in this book creatively expresses how we might think and learn about the rights that help us honour God, live well and love others.

It's important you know that certain rights belong to you and that adults of this Diocese are encouraged to learn about them.

Children have special rights because they are part of the human family. As a child, you need to be cared for and protected so that you have every possibility to grow and flourish in your human dignity. You have a right to seek help if ever you are in need.

If you believe there is something more that is needed in raising awareness about these rights, please write to me.

You can email me at bishop@bbcatholic.org.au.

God bless you and I am praying for you.

“

We are blessed in Catholic school communities to be intricately part of the daily lives of our children. Core to the work as a Catholic principal, and in leading the responsibilities of staff, is remaining diligent promoting this in our words and actions. Modelling and leading our staff in their awareness to notice when children come to school with indications of no or inadequate amounts of food, not only stops children reaching their potential, it raises concerns about broader wellbeing. This extends to ensuring clothing that is appropriate, and sufficient for children, or patterns when this might be evident over time.

“

MacKillop has clear policies on health and wellbeing that encompass all aspects of personal safety - spiritual, physical, emotional and intellectual and also by ensuring any issues that arise are promptly addressed with a focus on growth and development. A clean environment is maintained by the whole school community where students have agency in contributing to the pleasant, clean and orderly environment. Aesthetically, the school has initiated projects involving staff and students to create and maintain a pleasing environment through challenges, competitions and education.

“

It used to be that only boys could go to school but now people know that women are just as capable and have the right to education so we make sure we turn up to school each day. No matter what colour, race or gender you are you have the right to go to school every day.
